HE SELA WHEREER TILOUS.

A director some time ago, gave as ression to some notable comments upon the murse for a wife to pursue a order to make married life a spe-pend whally upon her husband for appineer,

Second, not to live solely for him-Third, to take up some vocation hat would serupy her mind, to the extent of making her less sensitive to husband's neglect.

Then she proceeded to say "Do not sacrifice your development on the altar of your husband's selfish-

"Do not expect too much of the best man on earth, lest you be disappointed "

We are inclined to sneer at the advice of the bankrupt man who tells us how to make a fortune, and we have little patience with the divorced woman who tells us how to make a aucones of marriage. Yet are they not ofstimes the very individuals by whose experience we may benefit?

It is an easy matter to look back and see where we made our mistakes There is more or less wisdom in the usefulness and strength, and this is not done by leaning upon others.

The desire of each individual should be to give happiness. That is the sure way to obtain it. Every young wife should start out in life with the idea that she is to make happiness for herself and for her family. She who starts out with this idea rather than that of having happiness made for her, will not find time to be miserable It is well, too, for every woman to have some vocation, study, accomplishment or work which takes her mind away from the domestic rut for a portion of each day. It is well for a man to know that his wife has resources within herself, and that she has qualities which win her the admiration of others. When a woman loves her bushand be enjoys knowing that she is popular. It is well, too, that a woman should band, since she will have more charity for his fallings if she sets forth in life knowing he is only human. To be only human does not mean that she is to accept disloyalty and dissipation and ill temper as a matter of course. There are men who consider these peculiarities merely an evidence of "human nature." But they are rather evidences of vulgarity.

But it is well for the world that women should live their own lives and cultivate and develop the best within themselves, and learn to find and give amusement and recre ation through their own efforts.

Such women make better wives and mothers and are better appreciated by their husbands and children than the purely domestic women, who are Chicago Medical Society Dr. M. WHAT WE CAN.

Many Chances Every Day to Help Our Neighbors on the Way.

(Rebecca Harding Davis in January

Who was that French boy that made his servant wake him every morning with the cry, "Rise, Monsieur le Comte, you have great things to do today!" The world has forgotten his name, and it is probable that he never did any great thing in it, but we may be sure that the call drove him every day to do many things for which the world was better and happier then, and which, no doubt, are working in it like leaven for good to this day. Why should not each one of us waken every morning remembering that though the new day may give us no chance for splendid achievementno line to carry to a sinking shipno word to speak which shall uplift a the following paragraph; nation-there will be plenty of chances in it before night to give to strength? IS HE A FISH, BIRD OR ANIMAL?

If the frog is a fish, because it lives a part of the time in the water, what is a muskrat?

Who that has seen a duck, head down and toes up, fishing its from the bottom of a pond, can doubt the duck is a fish, too?

And if a bird can be called a fish, because it takes to water, bow is it to be denied that a crosking tree-frog is a bird singing in a tree?

On the other hand, if a frog is an animal, what do you mean when you say you're "going frog-fishing? If a frog is an snimal he's the only one you catch with a hook and line.

Is the lobster an an animal? He has more legs than the frog. If the frog of commerce is an animal, why has he no teeth?

On all of which questions the dic-tionaries and encyclopedias throw no light.

Many Sleepless Nights, Owing to a Persistent Cough. Relief Found at Lest. meant self-torture and gloom is dying out among us. People of all sects are finding out that our Father has given us a beautiful home and that he wishes us to rejoice in it and in him, and to help our neighbors to rejoice with us. Even Isaac Watts, far back in his gloomy day, insisted that "religion never was designed to make our pleasures less."

"But," argues some girl who has neither beauty, health nor social position to give her influence, "what can I do to make the world better and happier?"

"For several winters past my wife has been troubled with a most persistent and disagrees been cough, which is wast persistent and disagrees been troubled with a most persistent and disagrees been cough, which is available, eventued over a person of angles," writes Will J.
